THE GREENHOUSE.

Through roof of glass the sunlight streams,
Life, light and warmth are in its beams,
The air is filled with odors sweet,
And blossoms bright the eye do meet;
The missions of these flowers fair
Are various as the names they bear;
They side by side in beauty bloom,
Some for the bridal, some the tomb;
These shall the brow of beauty grace,
Or willer in a costly vase;
These may to some poor sufferer bring
The thought of childhood and of spring,
The Mayflowers' fragrance sweet recall—
The babbling brooks, the old stone wall
On which he stood, that he might see
The bird's nest hidden in the tree;
This rosebud ere its leaves unfold,
May tell a tale that's very old,
Yet always new and sweet to hear
When first it falls upon the ear;
Or buried long in some old book,
In token of some word or look,
The owner wondering some day why
She kept that flower so old and dry.
To prima donna these are tossed,
He caring little what they cost,
Her music so his soul has thrilled,
And with her charms his heart is filled.
Tells bunch of violets, fresh and bright,
The sun shall set another night,
Strewn round a nero v., thy bed,
Over which a m'dher's tears are shed,
May then be shut from sight away,
To wither with the lovely clay.
Ye planks, what fragrance ye exhale!
Yet in that hand so still and pale,
And with the brow where genius glowed,
And lips from which such beauty flowed,
Your sweetness and your life shall fade
Within the silence and the shade,
With hopes of sunny a true, warm heart,
Of which his life had formed a part.
Oh! Mother Earth, within thy breast
It is not all that's laid to rest,
When our loved ones to thee we trust,
To mingle o'er a earth with dust.
Our hope, ambition and our pride,
The greensward o'er thy mound doth hide;
Our minds in darkness grope, nor see
The light that may arise from thee.
The skillful gardener trains with care
The vine and the exotic race,
And so the mother florist trains
Her flowers with much of care and pains.
They side by side in beauty bloom,
Some for the bridal, some the tomb,
Early in their lives and now they are well heeled.

onet said that he would not be satisfied with any little fool petty-lareeny racket.

"I can count over among my own acquaintances a hundred I should calculate who had as good opportunities to acquire a prominent position in life as I did, but they would druther catch catfish and curse their future with ignorance and vice. Had they applied themselves while young, they might as well have been in the Legislature as I for they possessed the same natural heaven born genius that I did if they had improved it as they ort.

"When I was young I tackled the more difficult brauches with great ardor and before I was nineteen years old could reduce fractions to a common denominator readily with one hand tied behind me.

"Do not despise learning. Men stand in Congress to-day as the result of thorough and studious labor in school who otherwise would perhaps be unknown, unhonored and unsprung. They worked hard at school while other boys were out at recess. They toiled on at noon eating their bread and cold beef with one hand while with the other they worked out their sums in algebra.

"If George Washington had neglected his studies in his youth, where would he have been to day? He would have filled an unknown grave, instead of resting in a stone milk-house at Mount Vernon with hundreds of Americans coining there day after day to shed the scalding weep over him. Adams & Jefferson, Forepaugh, Alexander the Great, Jesse James & Queen Victoria were all alike poor boys, but they acquired a noledge of the spelling book and slute early in their lives and now they are well heeled.

"The pen is might'er than the sword and a thorough noledge of grammar is better than a farrow cow in fly time. If it was the last words I could utter I would say: Get wealth if you can, but if you can't, get an education and marry rich." —Nye's Boomerang.

A Lady's Complaint Against the Customs.

A lady fashionably attired called upon Deputy-Collector David W. Gray at the Custom-house, and said she had a silk dress which she desired to send to her dress-maker in France for certain alterations, and wished to know if she could do so and have it returned free of duty. When the dress was made and sent her from Paris full duty was paid, and she thought it ought to be her privilege to send it back for the necessary changes without being required to make further payment. Mr. Gray politely informed her that the Customs laws made no provision to meet the case as she desired it, and as he was governed altogether by these laws, he could see no way for her to escape the duty. The decision thus given excited her greatly. She expressed herself freely concerning the injustice of the Government and left in a huff. —Baltimore Day.

—Fish cakes: Take any sort of cooked fish, well picked from the bones, and mince it. Put the heads, fins and bones into a stew-pan with sufficient water or stock to cover them; add one or two onions, some herbs and a little pepper and salt. Now put to the fish a third part of bread crumbs; a little chopped onions and parsley, and season with white pepper, salt and a little mace, if liked. Mix these ingredients well together, and then make into small cakes with white of egg, a little melted butter and anchovy sauce. Fry a nice brown, keeping a plate over the top while doing. Strain off the fish stock, thicken it with butter and flour, add catsup and a glass of white wine, then put it back into the stew-pan with the cakes and simmer gently for a quarter of an hour.

The President of the Lime-Kiln Club on Slang.

"If Brudder Pizarro Grant am in de hall to-night he will please step for'd," began the old man as Samuel Shin struck the triangle and sent its quivering notes dancing along the ceiling.

Brother Pizarro was present, and he stepped, his eyes having a sly look of alarm and his knees losing their sand with every motion.

"Brudder Grant," continued the President, "you am a young man on de doah-step of life; you w'ar very tight pants an' a very short coat, an' a very narrow hat, and you look decidedly wretched-er-chee. De great world am before you. If you begin right, no man dares bet two to one dat you won't sit in a Governor's chair befo' you am fifty. If you begin wrong it will be safe to bet 1,600 to nussin' dat you will bring up in State Prison befo' you am ten y'ars older."

"Yes, sah, Ize tryin' to start right," said Pizarro, as Brother Gardner stopped to swallow a pint of water.

"I hope so—I hope so, but I doubt it, Brudder Grant. Ize had my eye on you fur some leetle time back. I doan' link you would lie or steal or burglar or forge, but you has fallen into one very bad habit. De odder day you met a friend in front of my cabin, an' when he axed if you war gwine on de excursion you replied dat you would 'gasp to gurgle.' On anoder oceashun I heard you remark dat you would 'mix to murmur.' Again, you observed dat you would 'sigh to stife. Only an hour ago you told Waydown Bebee to 'cheese it,' an' yon advised Pickles Smith to 'bet his sweet life.' What does all dese things mean, Brudder Grant?"

"I doan' know," replied the victim, as he stood on one leg and scratchel his head.

"Nor I, either. Ize looked up de Latin an' French an' German an' Greek languages, but I can't find any sich expression as 'hire a hall,' 'see you in de grave-yard,' or 'I should smile.' Why do you make use of 'em?"

"I doan' know."

"Den stop it! If plain English am not good 'nuff for you to 'spress your thoughts in, Iarn Spanish or Chinese. It am all right for a sweet young gal who has been few college to remirk dat she would titter to grin, but sich 'spresheuns doan' sound well comin' from a young man. If I should go home to-night an' tell my ole woman dat I would perspire to eventuate, or lithograph to animosity, she'd look me straight in de eye fur thirty seconds an' den would come a climax, in which my hat, head an' a broomstick would be all mixed up."

"Return to your seat Brudder Grant; go back an' sit down wid a determination to avoid slang an' do your talkin' squar' from de shoulder. When you git tired of beef go into a grocery an' ax fur codfish in plain English, an' doan' use any mo' oratory dan am necessary to seene full weight an' git rid of a quarter wid a hole in it. We will now purceed to split de reg'lar order of bizness down de back an' let out de sleeves.—Detroit Free Press.

—The Gazette Maritime de Commerce, in its news regarding ocean disasters, relates the following curious example of the formidable power of molecular forces: The Italian ship Francesca, loaded with rice, put into port on May 11, at East London, leaking considerably. A large force of men was at once put on board to pump out the water contained in the ship and to unload her; but, in spite of all the activity exerted, the bags of rice soaked in water gradually and swelled up. Two days afterward, on May 13, the ship was violently burst asunder by the swelling of her cargo.

The Cincinnati Price Current estimates the next wheat crop at 450,000,000 bushels, a decrease of about 50,000,000 bushels as compared with that of last year.

The forthcoming reports of the Department of Agriculture show Indiana to be the first wheat growing state. The yield there is placed at 1,816 bushels to the square mile and 18.04 bushels to the acre. Ohio ranks next and Illinois third.

A bill has passed to be engrossed in the Legislature of Maine prohibiting the sale or giving away of toy pistols, under a penalty of not less than five or more than one hundred dollars, and a liability for all damages from such sale or giving away.

JUDGE ACUNSON, of the U. S. Court, sitting in Pittsburg, has ruled that the Government has no right to inquire whether or not tobacco which is sold from a broken package is to be sold again. The opinion is contrary to the rulings of the Internal Revenue Department.

The anti-Butler faction in the Democratic party in Massachusetts has dwindled down so that it could be crowded in a bed-room of a summer resort hotel. A respectable number stood out bravely as long as there was no patronage to be had, but demoralization began at once when Butler had offices at his disposal.

It is estimated by persons who profess to know that not less than 200,000 barrels of whisky will be exported to the Bermuda Islands, to avoid the immediate payment of the tax due. It can be sent out of the country free of tax and returning on the same vessel will be permitted to remain in custom warehouses for a year before the tax is collected.

NEWS BREVITIES.

Missouri is about to spend $50,000 in geological researches, with a view of discovering more about her mineral wealth.

Thos. C. Vanness, Commissioner of Immigration under Governor Irwin, of California, has been arrested for embezzling $14,000.

John McCullough, the actor, still continues to improve. He will remain at Cleveland until Saturday, when he will go to Washington.

The bill prohibiting the acceptance of railroad passes by the State officers passed a third reading in the Pennsylvania Senate Wednesday.

Life in Berlin has small charm for many. On the first nine days of February there were ten suicides a day. Those in the army increase.

The Mississippi Supreme Court affirmed the sentences of Jim Woods and Ben Fletcher, convicted of murder. Both will be hanged at Natchez, May 3.

Reports from the central portion of Illinois indicate that the cold snap has caused damage to early-sown wheat and seriously affected the peach prospects.

There is said to live in Fairfax, Va., a maiden lady over 100 years old who has wined and dined with Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, and others of the Revolutionary regime.

A deficiency in the Public Printer's office is already apparent, and it is openly charged that many public documents ordered by Congress are sold for waste paper, it is presumable by Congressmen themselves.

A will printed on a type writer has been admitted to probate at New Haven, though a Connecticut statute requires that such documents must be written, the judge deciding that such printing is writing within the meaning of the law.

Advices from various points in the Yellowstone country indicate that the past winter has been favorable for stock men, and the loss from exposure and cold weather is estimated to not exceed five per cent. for the whole Territory.

The Lutz Wagon Company, with a capital stock of $25,000, has been organized at Xenia, O., with the following incorporators: John Lutz, Eli Miller, J. H. Harbine, T. P. Townsley, F. D. Torrence, David Millen, Thomas Harbine and J. D. Kyle.

At Peoria, Ill., Thursday, a rope suspending a swinging scaffold, on which three men were engaged painting the side of a large elevator, broke. Jacob Wattenschwiler was killed, Joseph Vail was fatally hurt, and R. O. Shupp caught a rope and escaped injury.

Among other strange coincidences is the part played by the number 13 in the life of the late Richard Wagner. In the first place, 13 is the number of letters comprising his name; in the year 1813 he was born; on the 13th of March, 1861, his great work, "Tannhäuser," failed to rouse any appreciation in Paris; it was on the 13th of February that he breathed his last; and he died after 13 years of married life.

A recent issue of the London Gazette shows that public house property in the large cities of England is rapidly decreasing in value. There were thirty public houses within half a mile of Liverpool Custom House closed within the year, because they did not pay the cost of rent, taxes and license fees. It is to be hoped that this state of affairs is due to a better public opinion in regard to temperance.

A sweeping theatrical bill has been introduced into the House of Commons in England, where it seems certain to pass. It proposes to repeal all existing acts, to relieve the Lord Chamberlain of his duties and the Middlesex magistrates of theirs in connection with licensing music and dancing halls, and to place all theatres and entertainments of whatsoever kind under the Home Secretary for licensing, order and regulation.

THE people of Chester, are very much in favor of a street railway, and we are assured, will be very generous in its aid. The road will be of great advantage to Chester, a fact the thinking people of that neighborhood thoroughly appreciate.

GREAT piles of merchandise for Maysville business men are arriving every day. The city was never better stocked with goods than it is to-day. The country dealers will find here everything their trade demands, and at the most satisfactory prices.

COL. GUS. SIMMONS' Medicated Well Water, which has been used so successfully by many persons in this neighborhood for dyspepsia and diseases of the kidneys, will be found advertised elsewhere. Sufferers from these ailments will find relief by giving it a trial.

THE commissioner sent out by the New York Herald to distribute among the flood sufferers the money raised by that paper, gave the citizens of Portsmouth $500, and those of Ripley $2,500. Smaller amounts were distributed at other towns along the Ohio, above Cincinnati.

MR. JOHN CORWINE, a former resident of Maysville and well known to many of our older citizens, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Best, in Keokuk, Iowa, on the 20th inst., at the advanced age of 83 years. He removed to Keokuk from this city in 1854. His old friends will learn with regret the intelligence of his death.

New Firm.

We take pleasure in directing the attention of our readers to the new firm of Dodson and Frazee, whose announcement is made elsewhere. Both gentlemen are well known in business circles as men of the highest integrity. They propose to deal exclusively in the best grades of coal and in leaf tobacco.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mrs. Thomas Arnet died suddenly at Sharpsburg, recently.

Mr. E. L. Worthington is visiting Catlettsburg on legal business.

Miss Thompson, of Lexington, is the guest of the family of Mr. Ad. Wadsworth.

Mr. Nathan Coleman, an old and respected citizen of Ripley, died on the 19th inst.

Mr. Richard Cotton, who has been absent from Aberdeen for about three years, is at home on a visit to his parents.

Business Change.

Mr. Newton Cooper, after being actively engaged in the stove and tin-ware trade in Maysville for forty-four years has disposed of his interest in the business of Cooper & Bissell and will hereafter give his attention to the brickyards in which he is engaged with Mr. A. C. Sphar. His successors are Messrs. R. Bissell, Frank McClanahan and H. J. Shea, all practical workmen, and recognized in the city as among our best and most honorable and useful citizens. The BULLETIN wishes the new firm success.

Paster Called.

The congregation of the Church of the Nativity have called as pastor Rev. Mr. Beckwith, of Atlanta, Ga., who is said to be an eloquent, forcible and pleasing speaker. He is unmarried.

HIS PA BUSTED.

From Peck's Sun.

"Say, can't I sell you some stock in a silver mine," asked the bad boy of the grocery man, as he came in the store and pulled from his breast pocket a document printed on parchment paper, and representing several thousand dollars stock in a silver mine.

"Look here," says the grocery man, as he turned pale, and thought of telephoning to the police station for a detective, "you haven't been stealing your father's mining stock, have you. Great heavens, it has come at last! I have known all the time that you would turn out to be a burglar, or a defaulter, or a robber of some kind. Your father has the reputation of having a bonanza in a silver mine, but if you go lugging his silver stock around he will soon be ruined. Now you go right back home and put that stock in your pa's safe, like a good boy."

"Put it in the safe! O, no, we keep it in a box stall now, in the barn. I will trade this thousand dollars in stock for two heads of lettuce, and get pa to sign it over to you, if you say so. Pa told me I could have the whole trunk full if I wanted it, and the hired girls are using the silver stock to clean windows and to kindle fires, and pa has quit the church and says he won't belong to any concern that harbors bilks. What's a bilk?" said the boy, as he opened a candy jar and took out four sticks of hoarhound candy.

"A bilk, said the grocery man, as he watched the boy, "Is a fellow that plays a man for candy, or money, or anything, and don't intend to return an equivalent. You are a small sized bilk. But what's the matter with your pa and the church, and what has the silver mine stock got to do with it."

"Well, you remember that exhorter that was here last fall, that use to board around with the church people all the week, and talk about Zion, and laying up treasures where the moths wouldn't gnaw them, and they wouldn't get rusty, and where thieves wouldn't pry off the hinges. He was the one that used to go home with ma from prayer meetings, when pa was down town, who wanted to pay off the church debt in solid silver bricks. He's the bilk. I guess if pa should get him by the neck he would jerk nine kinds of revealed religion out of him. O, pa is hotter than he was when the hornets took the lunch off of him. When you strike a poor man on his pocket-book, it hurts him. That fellow prayed and sang like an angel, and boarded around like a tramp. He stopped at our house over a week, and he had specimens of rock that were chock full of silver and gold, and he and pa used to sit up at night and look at it. You could pick pieces of silver out of the rock as big as buck shot, and he had some silver briks that were beautiful. He had been out in Colorado and found a hill full of the silver and he wanted to form a stock company and dig out millions of dollars. He didn't want anybody but pious men, that belonged to the church, in the company, and I think that caused pa to unite with the church so suddenly. I know he was as wicked as could be a few days before he joined the church, but this revivalist, with his words about the beautiful beyond, where all shall dwell together in peace, and sing praise, and his description of that Colorado mountain where the silver stuck out so you could hang your hat on it, converted pa. That man's scheme was to let all the church people who were in good standing, and who had plenty of money, into the company and when the mine began to return dividends by the car load, they could give largely to the church, and pay the debts of all the churches, and put down carpets, and fresco the ceiling. The man said he felt that he had been steered on to that silver mine by a higher power, and his idea was to work it for the glory of the cause. He said he liked pa, and would make him vice president of the company. Pa he bit like a bass, and I guess he invested five thousand dollars in stock, and ma she wanted to come in, and she put in a thousand dollars that she laid up to buy some diamond ear-rings, and the man gave pa a lot of stock to sell to other members of the church. They are all into it even the minister. He drew his salary a head, and all of the deacons they come in, and the man went back to Colorado with about thirty thousand dollars of good pious money. Yesterday pa got a paper from Colorado giving the whole snap away, and the pious man has been spending the money in Denver, and whooping it up. Pa suspected something was wrong two weeks ago, when he heard that the pious man had been on a toot in Chicago, and he wrote to a man in Denver who used to get full with pa years ago when they were both on the turf, and pa's friend said the man that sold the stock was a fraud, and that he didn't own no mine, and that he borrowed the samples of ore and silver briks from a pawn broker in Denver. I guess it will break pa up, for a while, though he is well enough fixed with mortgages and things. But it hurts him to be took in. He lays it all to ma. He says if she hadn't let that exhorter for the silver mine go home with her, this would not have occurred, and ma says she believes pa was in partnership with the man to beat her out of her thousand dollars that she was going to buy a pair of pious diamond ear-rings with. O, it is a terror over to the house now. Both the hired girls put in all the money they had, and took stock, and they threaten to sue pa for arson, and they are going to leave to-night, and ma will have to do the work. Don't you never try to get rich quick," said the boy, as he peeled a herring and took a couple of crackers.

"Never you mind me," said the grocery man. "They don't catch me on any of their silver mines. But I hope this will have some influence on you, and teach you to respect your pa's feelings, and not play any jokes on him, while he is feeling so bad over his being swindled."

"O, I don't know about that. I think when a man is in trouble, if he has a good little boy to take his mind from his troubles, and get him mad at something else, it rests him. Last night we had hot maple syrup and bisenit for supper, and pa had a sancer full in front of him just a steaming. I could see he was thinking too much about his mining stock, and I thought if there was anything I could do to take his mind off of it, and place it on something else, I would be doing a kindness that would be appreciated. I sat on the right of pa, and when he wasn't looking I pulled the table cloth so the saucer of red hot maple syrup dropped off in his lap. Well, you'd a dide to see how quick his thoughts turned from his financial troubles to his physical misfortunes. There was about a pint of hot syrup, and it went all over his lap, and you know how hot melted maple sugar is, and how it sort of clings to anything. Pa jumped up and grabbed hold of his pants legs to pull them away from himself, and he danced around and told ma to turn the hose on him, and then he took a pitcher of ice water and poured it down his pants, and he said the condemned old table was getting so rickety that a saucer wouldn't stay on it, and I told pa if he would put some tar on his legs, the same kind that he told me to put on my lip to make my monstecie grow, the syrup wouldn't burn so, and then he cuffed me, and I think he felt better. It is a great thing to get a man's mind off of his troubles, but where a man hasn't got any mind, like you, for instance—"

At this point the grocery man picked up a fire poker, and the boy went out in a hurry and hung up a sign in front of the grocery, "Cash paid for fat Dogs."

SIMMONS'

MEDICATED WELL-WATER.

A Specific for Dyspepsia and Diseases of the Kidneys.

HAS been used with most gratifying success in many obstinate cases. Prof. F. W. Clark, professor of Chemistry at the University of Cincinnati says this water "belongs to the same class with that of the Alleghany Springs, of Virginia," the medicinal virtues of which are too well known to be stated here. Those who desire to try this famous water are referred to Captain C. W. Boyd, Levanna, Ohio; Captain C. M. Holloway, Cincinnati, Ohio; J. J. Raife, Cincinnati, Ohio. For sale in half barrels and jugs by Fire-Place Fancies.

Charles Dudley Warner says that a great wood fire in a wide kitchen chimney, with all the pots boiling and bubbling, and a roasting spit turning in front of it, makes a person as hungry as does one of Scott's novels, but it is a very rare sight in this age of invisible fires. The old kitchen fire-place may be found still in a few remote back regions, but it is more picturesque than convenient. Let us see how they cooked in those days. There was a hot fire made of hemlock or other wood, a back-log as big as one man could lift, which was dumped into its place after all the fire had been raked forward; a second smaller log on the top of that and a "forestick" on which the brands were piled. It was a work of art to get the brands into position with the big iron tongs. Great puffs of smoke rushed out and eyes wept that were unused to tears, as they encountered it. Over this great fire that was literally built, the crane of yesteryear swung, black and sooty, and pot-hooks depended therefrom. The house-wife of those days bent over the hot fire at the risk of scorching her face, and swung the pot or kettle on to the hook; a sort of hit-and-miss arrangement, for her eyes were blinded with smoke, and if she missed, the water spilled into the fire, and if she hit, the end of the crane flew out with the momentum and rattled her on the head. A whole row of pots and kettles could be hung over the fire. There would be the pot with the potatoes boiling like mad, the lid flying up and down with the escaping steam, the bake-kettle, a round little kettle the shape of a cheese, with three legs, and a lid which had an iron loop to it. This lid was put on the fire and heated nearly red hot, then it was transferred to the bake-kettle which already hung over the fire, and contained the bread or biscuit for the family. When the good woman wished to see if the bread was browning she lifted the lid off with the tongs which were run through the loop for that purpose, and moving it aside looked in; if they appeared white and doughy she heaped red hot coals on top of the bake-kettle lid, so that between two fires the bread turned a proper brown. Meanwhile sauce-pans simmered on the coals raked out in front; the tea-pot boiled at the "spout" in its own corner, and a gridiron in front of the andirons broiled the fresh shad, or more likely they fried in the open frying pan, which hung before the tea-kettle and the potatoes; or if it was dinner, the tin kitchen stool in front of the hot fire, and a savory goose or a joint of mutton, hung and browned and sent out profligate odors, while little messes of gravy or sauce were stewing in corners. It is hot and headache work to look back on, but nobody complained and there was as fierce a fight against the modern cook stove as against the stove in the meeting house. At night the fire was raked to prevent it from going out. All the ends of the burnt wood were clubbed together, then the hot coals, then hot ashes, and over it all the cold outside ashes. The man who usually raked the fire never wanted to have it touched, for he knew that as he left it there would be live coals to start it the next morning; but youngsters who were out late would slip into the old kitchen and gather like shadows on the hearth to poke apples or potatoes, or even eggs, in the hot coals, and when they were cooked, carry them up to bed to eat them. Did ever food taste as good again though they have dined with kings and emperors since; and were there ever such Sally Lunnas as that old bake-kettle turned out, such ears of corn as were roasted at the kitchen fire, such molasses gingerbread as that, eaten hot with bowls of rich milk. Back-log stories were not confined to books when the girls paraded chestnuts and roasted them on winter nights in the glowing coals, and were courted by the ruddy blaze. There may be a heap of comfort in a cook stove but there is precious little romance.

The Boston Journal of Chemistry thinks glucose will be the sugar of the future. It can be made from corn and potatoes in climates where sugar cane will not grow nor the sugar beet be cultivated with profit.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mr. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

Mrs. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using Ayer's Hair Vigor the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.
